

The following is the configuration of the Programmable Logic Card that I designed and programmed in order to synchronize control of various microscopy devices. There are various types of cells that can be connected together to program logic structures.

